there was an organic farm to work on down the road from the halfway house, and after a couple weeks they let me volunteer there a few hours a day sowing seeds and potting plants in the greenhouse the pharmaceutical companies in turn argue that the problem does not lie with the patents but with the inadequate infrastructure